

Help for Victims and Families

The tragic fire at The Station nightclub in Rhode Island affected many in our community.

The Massachusetts Office for Victim Assistance (MOVA) and the agencies we fund are here to help.

Many people in our community lost family members, friends or co-workers in the tragedy and need support. Others were injured, or are struggling after witnessing the trauma. After a trauma, people go through a wide range of emotional responses. It can be helpful to talk about your experiences and how they are impacting you. Service providers across the state are available to meet, for free, with individuals or groups who are struggling in the aftermath of this tragedy.
